

Skills for Writing and Managing Contract of Service

HRD Corp Claimable (SBL-Khas)

It is a fact that only very few HR management professionals can boast that the contract of employment which they use had been drafted with their inputs to be written professionally by lawyers. Most of us either inherited these hand-me-down contracts and the fact is the vast majority of us are actually using copied, pasted and modified templates for the contracts of employment which we manage.

By and large, these contracts serve a purpose, and seem to remain problem-free. However in actuality, most of us are using these contracts in a way where:

1. We don't fully understand the effects and implications since we do not understand the words fully
2. We apply the terms in the way we think we want, not what it actually meant
3. We do not realize that some of the terms have unfairly restricted the natural prerogative of the management to manage the business, because the lawyers may have neglected to understand management rights over human resource
4. We fail as paid professionals to do what should have been the best for the employer who pays us

This training will help you learn to read and understand some of the essential terminologies used. You will learn how and when to hinge or unhinge the contract of service to the company's HR policy and employee's handbook. You will know how to write a contract of employment that does not encumber your employer, and you will learn to manage the contract of service with confidence that you are doing the right thing for the employer and the employee, especially with the recent amendments to the Labour Laws.

Review of Contract of Service:

The trainer will review your existing Contract of Service (which will be collected before the workshop commences) during the class – to point out statutory shortcomings.
